March General Meeting

Date: Thursday, March 8
Time: 7:00 P.M.
Place: Brighton Town Hall, 2300 Elmwood Ave.

The federal license which controls the Salmon River Dam is the first of its kind in the country which includes a settlement agreement governing recreational dam releases. Boaters and fishermen were represented in the negotiations by AWA, NYRU, and ADK. The cooperative spirit of the negotiations avoided lengthy and expensive court cases.

Jerry Hargrave and Bill Kuipers will present a program on the Salmon River Licensing Process. Some of the topic are:

- What is the history behind the releases?
- How were the five dates selected?
- How were the flow levels selected?
- What is the Salmon River Flow Management Advisory Committee?

Bring your own questions for Jerry and Bill and find out more about one of the local rivers that we paddle!

Waterline Is Free!

You're cruising around the nation with your boat on top of your car looking for water. But wait — instead of wasting gas and time, let your fingers do the walking and give Waterline a call.

What is Waterline? Waterline is a national telephone hotline that gives current river stage information for hundreds of river gauge and release sites in the United States. Flow information is available for a number of sites as well. Waterline is totally automated and is the largest single telephone source of river level and flow information in the United States.

Waterline operates 24 hours a day, 365 days per year. Most Waterline reports are updated 6 to 24 times per day with satellite data directly from the gauges. Waterline is incredibly fast and simple to use. Just call the 800 report number of your choice, enter the six digit code for the site you want and listen to the report. You can interrupt any report with another site code any time you have heard enough of any report. The site codes and additional information are available on the Web at www.h2oline.com or by calling Waterline Customer Service at (800) 945-3376 during normal business hours, Eastern Time.

There are two toll-free waterline numbers. The Waterline Fishing Edition (800) 452-1742 includes locations and sponsors of interest to anglers, and the Waterline Boater's Edition (800) 452-1737 includes locations and sponsors of interest to the paddlers and floaters.

Up until several months ago Waterline used a fee for service model. Now, however, they are providing the service to the public for free, and are in the process of finding sponsors to offset the cost. Since they began offering the service for free, they have seen a dramatic increase in usage. During last year's boating season, they received over 30,000 calls from 9 states for the Salmon River (NY) alone! If you or your business decide to sponsor a river, listeners will hear a brief message from you at the beginning of each call. For more information, contact Waterline sales at (800) 747-1667.

“Pick Up Your Toys When You’re Done Playing”

Mom's words were still ringing in our ears when we created the Talic Sport Hammock. The tidiest, most intelligent way to store one or more kayaks, an engineering masterpiece that works with either our free-standing frame or lets you mount hammocks directly to the studs in your garage or basement. Sport Hammocks extend the life of your kayak by cradling your craft for even weight distribution and easy accessibility. And everything is made with the highest quality woods and hardware for years of trouble-free, low-maintenance use.

Why don't you pick up a Talic Sport Hammock today? It's a perfect way to say thank you to the woman who first sang you, "Row, row, row your Boat..."

Liability Laws And Recreational Use Statutes In Easy Access Format

Jason Robertson, Access Director, American Whitewater, access@amwhitewater.org

If you've spent much time playing outside, you've probably asked a landowner at least once or twice for permission to access a favorite trail, river, climbing wall, hunting area, or fishing hole on their property. Most of these encounters start with variations on a familiar script:

"Hi, I'm looking for the owner of this beautiful piece of God's green earth."

"Well, that's me, it's been in my family since the '30s."

"Wow, that's great. Hey, would you mind if I park over by the woods and do a little exploring?"

This is when the script can break down and the landowner either answers, "Sure, no problem. Just be careful, wouldn't want you to get hurt," or "I'm not sure. What if you get hurt? My lawyer's warned me about letting folks on the property."

If you were lucky, you got the first response and spent the day burning calories. If you weren't as lucky, you got the latter response, which was less of a question and more of a statement leading to "No, go away." If you got the soft shoulder, you could have responded with, "I plan on being careful, don't worry about me," or "Okay, guess I'll head up the road and try somewhere else." Regardless, your options were limited since there seemed to be more reasons for landowners to deny recreational access than to support it.

In fact, the fear of lawsuits has often been enough to prevent landowners from opening their land to recreation — even when they had no personal aversion to sharing their land with the public. That's why all 50 states have now developed Recreational Use Statutes. These statutes are intended to promote recreation on private lands by reducing landowner liability concerns. The effect has been increased recreational access for canoers, kayakers, mountain bikers, hikers, climbers, skiers, horseback riders, hunters, fishermen, and others.

Now, with assistance from the International Mountain Biking Association (IMBA) and the American Association of Horsemanship Safety (AAHS), American Whitewater has made it even easier for recreationists and landowners to work out access arrangements.

American Whitewater has surveyed and compiled the recreational use statutes for all 50 states with side-by-side comparisons of these laws in an easy to read table at www.americanwhitewater/access/.

The table at this link answers the most common questions for each of the 50 states:

- Is the owner responsible if someone gets hurt on their land?
- Can the owner be sued?
- Does the owner have to guarantee that their property is safe, or does the owner have a duty to warn if there is a known hazard?
- Is the owner's liability protection lost if the owner charges recreational visitors an access fee?

In addition to answering these common questions, our site collects all 50 state recreational use statutes, provides links to additional sources of information, and contrasts differences between the states.

By providing tools and helping to educate recreationists and landowners about their legal rights and protections American Whitewater hopes to encourage more landowners to say those magic words, "Sure it's fine to visit. Take care of yourself and have a great time!"

Third Annual FLOW Swap Meet

When: Sunday, March 18, 2001
 Where: Mendon Ponds Park East Lodge
 (same place as last year)

Schedule:
 10:00 am sellers check in equipment.
 11:00 am buyers welcome
 ongoing equip check in.
 2:00 pm sellers pick up your cash and unsold equipment before 3:00 pm.

Food: Free donuts and coffee (a small donation won't be turned down!)

This year, we're going all out (note the free donuts and coffee). So, get your stuff there early! Bring your canoes, kayaks, paddles, PFD's, spray skirts, hip pads, bilge pumps, rescue gear, helmets, wet suits, dry suits, dry bags, flotation bags, cam straps, car racks, booties, books, camping gear — used long underwear might be a little hard to sell.

New Idea — Do you have any high quality photos you would be interested in selling? There could be a market here.

Last year, Harry Weidman showed off his beautiful, handmade Greenland style paddles — they are pieces of art. We also were happy to be introduced to the Sport Hammock — locally made in Rochester. Jim Lowe sold enough gear for gas money to the Ottawa. Kevin C. arrived with a full boat rack and left a happy man with an empty roof! We met plenty of new folks and saw lots of familiar faces. Paddlers came from all over — Bob L. came all the way from Wellsville! Two years ago, we perfected snow kayaking — don't let the weather deter you! We'll proceed snow, rain, or shine.

Everyone is welcome — sellers, buyers, members, and non-members. We'll have a fire and good company. And did we mention the free donuts and coffee?

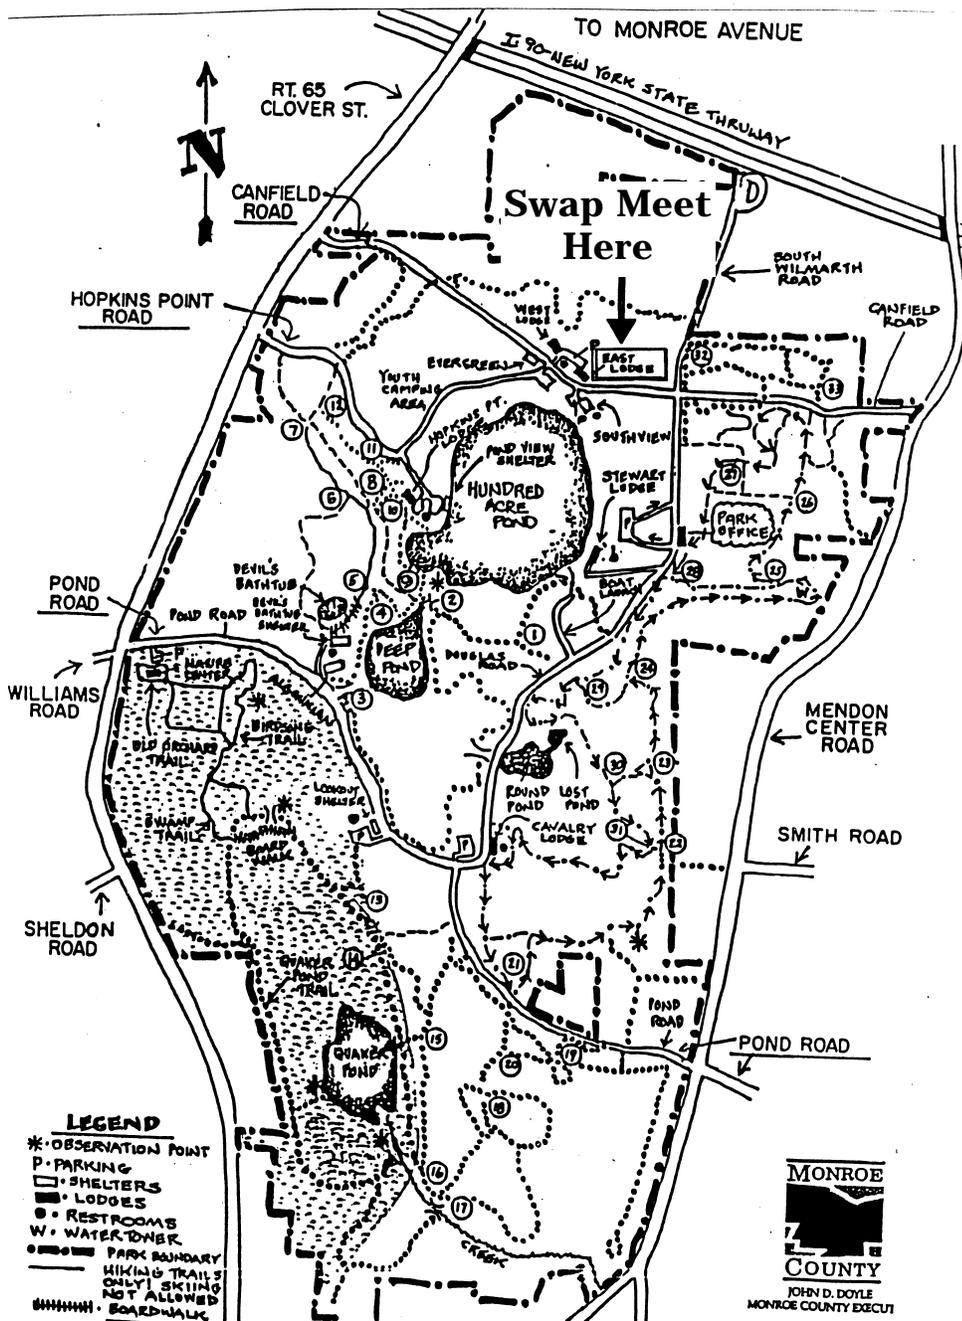

A small donation to FLOW is required for registration. It is $10.00 if you are selling boats or other large items and it is $5.00 for smaller gear. You can sell your equipment yourself or have FLOW sell it on consignment for you. Consignment sales will require that 10% of the selling price also be donated to FLOW.

Acceptable methods of payment are cash or checks with two forms of ID.

If you would like to drop equipment off in the weeks before the Swap Meet, contact Ed Boggs at (716) 424-2230 or contact Ed or Cathy at edncathy@rochester.rr.com.

Come and start off (or continue) the season on the right paddle stroke! And don't forget the free donuts and coffee.
