Silver Lake Open Water Trip

Saturday, 7/13

Wyoming County: Holsteins, beautiful hills with picturesque farms, Silver Lake, and more holsteins!

Silver Lake is about an hour away from downtown Rochester and is near the village of Perry, NY and Letchworth Park. The inlet and the outlet are on the same end of the lake which is about 3.5 miles long and .5 miles wide. We will put in at the state facility on the west side at about 10 a.m. after paying a $5.00 per car fee. There are some good area restaurants for lunch or dinner and you may wish to drive through Letchworth Park before you return home. This should be an easy trip unless the wind whips. Please call Ellen or Larry La Croix at (585)786-8542 or Cloudten@wycol.com so we can send you a detailed map.

We are in and out so please leave a message on the machine with your phone number. This may be a good first trip or family outing.

GWC Kayak Polo Team Takes Div II Bronze Medal at US Nationals

Submitted by Jim Hopkins

The Genesee Waterways Center's first kayak polo team won the bronze medal in Division II at the U.S. Kayak Polo Nationals June 7-9 at the University of New Hampshire in their first competition.

Ruth, Hoppy, Phil, Scott, Dan, and Rob

The GWC team had a 1 win/3 loss record in the 5-team round robin and a 3 win/1 loss record in the double elimination playoff. Highlights included 3-2 win over Spy Pond (Boston) for 3rd place and close losses to Gold Medal Maryland (4-2) and Silver Medal San Francisco (3-2) in "golden goal" overtime.

Rochester-area paddlers Rob Blake, James Hopkins, Phil Menard, Scott Conley, and Dan Weiss and 9 others who were unable to make the trip formed as a recreational team in January and practiced in the Monroe Community College pool. Ben Ledwitz of Pittsburgh and Ruth Herrgottshofer of Nuremberg, Germany joined the GWC players at UNH for the competition.

Kayak polo is a major water sport in Europe and will be offered through the Genesee Waterways Center. The team will be holding summer practices Tuesdays at 6:30 PM at the "Widewaters" on the north side of the canal at Lock 32 off Culver Road in Pittsford. Wednesday evening will be the alternate in the case of inclement weather.

Spraykirt Lost at Pool Practice

Paul Houndt lost his L'eau Vive sprayskirt at pool practice this winter. It is black with a yellow crossband. If you found it, please contact him at 342-3055.

Salmon River Whitewater Festival

Submitted by Michelle Bull

The 3rd Annual Salmon River Whitewater Festival to benefit AW will be held on Sat, July 13 from 6-11pm at Stoney's Pineville Campgrounds in Pulaski, NY.

That's right—everything is taking place at Stoney's this year! There will be boat reps and vendors, a Silent Auction which features boats donated by Northern Outfitters and Whitewater Challengers, a 50/50 Raffle, a Stoney-style bonfire, and music. As usual, proceeds from the fest go to support AW. Camping is $5 a head. And, for the first time, Stoney is allowing access to the class 2 Upper Section from the campgrounds!

If anyone needs more information, please feel free to contact me at kayakchick@hotmail.com.

Cheap Paddle Insurance

Submitted by Jerry Hargrave

Note that the title says, "paddle insurance" not "paddling insurance"! I got your attention though, didn't I? I hate to admit it, but an awful lot of paddling gear has been stolen recently. I liked it much better when paddlers returned lost gear when they found it instead of ripping it off.

I have stumbled across a cheap and easy way to insure that your paddle will still be on your roof rack after the shuttle. You'll need two inexpensive plumbing pieces called "pipe hangers" or "split rings". They come in various sizes (1 in., 1 ½ in., and 2 in. diameter).

Hanger Types and Mount

I have a real hunky Silver creek kayak paddle with a handle as large as a pickaxe. I use the 1-½ inch diameter hanger. Measure the diameter of your paddle shaft. Or take your paddle to the hardware store with you - this is a guaranteed babe magnet! If you paddle with a dainty squirt blade a smaller diameter hanger is in order. It's all about size Paul!

And they come in at least three different materials: brass (nice), cast metal, and galvanized steel. They can be found at Chase Pitkin, Home Depot, or most local hardware stores. The best part is they only cost a couple of dollars per set. They have a threaded base and swing open halves on a hinge. The hanger is equipped with a small closing screw, which when tightened clamps the hinged section onto the pipe or in this case paddle. A screw is not very burglar proof, so use a lock. I bought two Master locks, keyed alike, at Home Depot for less than $5. For big diameter padlocks you might have to drill out threaded hole in the hinged section just enough to allow for a small lock. The whole system only costs $10 max.

There are several methods to mount the pipe hangers to a kayak rack. Insert a bolt up through the rack, or in my case through the 2X4 lumber. I suggest using round-headed carriage bolts. These can't be turned with a wrench or pliers so no one can steal the hanger. Then thread the hanger down onto the bolt. With one hanger on the front carrier and one on the rear carrier, the paddle cannot be unscrewed.

When the paddle is locked in it would take a hacksaw or bolt cutter to get it off. If I heard that kind of racket at night I would come flying out of my van like a junkyard dog. A thief won't usually hang around hacksawing or making noise unless you are parked deep in the woods and you have the only vehicle. And lets face it - if they want it that bad they are gonna get it anyway.

Hanger and Carriage Bolt On Paddle

You can also add a base that is sold along with the hangers and a short piece of threaded rod to get the paddle the correct height off the roof or rack. You don't have to mount them anywhere at all. Simply lock a cable in with the paddle, and lock your paddle to a tree! They can be mounted to the top of popup trailers, on bumpers. But real men just drill holes in their van roof. Yes, they work on canoe paddles too!

Hanger Mount On Paddle

What's the best part? If you catch the dirtball trying to steal your paddle, you can usually lock the hanger on a personal part and lead him to the police. But then again, it's all about size, Paul!

American Whitewater Is Getting Active in the 3-Wave Issue

The following is an open letter from Kevin Colburn to the paddling community, submitted by Steve Kittelberger.

June 4, 2002

Dear Black River Stakeholder:

American Whitewater has become increasingly aware of the debate surrounding the Route 3 Wave in Watertown, New York and would like to assist in a fair and responsible resolution to the issue.

American Whitewater often acts to prevent river alterations that would be done in the name of timber sales, road construction, and other damaging uses. However, American Whitewater also plays a major role in restoring rivers and educating the public about the benefits of healthy rivers and of recreation. Play-parks can focus the public eye back on the river; about water quality, upstream land use, dam management, and urban planning. American Whitewater is a National non-profit organization that represents roughly 8,000 members and 80,000 affiliate members that works to protect and restore whitewater rivers. Because of this constituency and mission we have a direct interest in the outcome of the debate surrounding the Route 3 Wave.

We have a great deal of respect for all the hard work that local individuals and organizations have put into this issue and want to offer our support of a resolution that is good for the Black River, its paddlers, and its communities. Like many paddlers, we have concerns about the openness of the process which affects a public resource, accountability, and exclusivity. We support the following guidelines for moving forward with the process of deciding if and how the Route 3 Wave should be altered and managed. American Whitewater fully supports these recommendations and we feel that they will minimize the economic and recreational risks of the project while allowing for increased public input. This is a process that respects everyone's views and will allow the process to move forward or be stopped based on sound information that is freely distributed and discussed. We would feel comfortable supporting the project if the following conditions and recommendations are met. We urge the City of Watertown and Blackwater Development to consider these recommendations, and would like to attend a public forum in July or August to discuss these points in greater detail.

1. The City of Watertown should appoint a Citizen's Board of Advisors to oversee the Project. This Board should represent all interested stakeholder groups, whether local, regional or national, including the whitewater recreationalists that use the Black River. This board, properly composed, could do much to build consensus for the project and its purpose in the paddling community.

2. The question of access, fees and exclusivity needs to be aired thoroughly and immediately. The Black has been deemed a navigable river, and therefore the public has a right to paddle and use the river freely. If Blackwater's financial assumptions include fees and exclusivity, these are best validated now in open discussion, rather than later in a potentially litigious environment.
3. A second engineering opinion as to the possible sites and the cost of modifying them should be sought immediately and before any scale-model flow studies are undertaken. There are several engineering firms in the US with the experience and credentials to complete this successfully and convincingly. This will go a long way toward building the consensus in the paddling community for the project.
4. A refined, all-inclusive project cost estimate should be provided to protect local taxpayers from potentially expensive and unplanned cost overruns.
5. Complete funding for the construction phase of the project should be guaranteed before its start, in order to avoid the risk of abandoning a work in progress.
6. An additional informational meeting on the project, on weekend and well-publicized in advance, is recommended. Such a meeting should be held in July in Watertown.

Please consider these recommendations and feel free to discuss this with me via email or phone. Also, please consider attending a meeting in July to discuss these issues.

Sincerely,

Kevin Colburn

Route 3 Wave Loses Bid for 2005 World's Site

Submitted by Steve Kittelberger

The World Kayaking Federation has awarded the 2005 championships to Australia, rejecting Watertown's bid to host the event at Route 3 Wave. The wave site became controversial last winter when Blackwater Ltd, a private developer, proposed to deepen the wave by cutting away rock and modifying its present characteristics. Blackwater, however, is continuing plans to develop and modify the area.
